“The First Intercollegiate Game”

To commemorate the centennial in 1969, The First Intercollegiate Game was commissioned by General Motors' Chevrolet Division as a series of four paintings depicting significant moments in the history of college football. Rutgers and Princeton played the first gridiron challenge between two schools on November 6, 1869.

“Resurgence”

Rutgers has been named to receive the inaugural College Football Game of the Year™ Award for its stunning upset of Louisville on November 9, 2006. A stadium record crowd was joined by millions across the nation who watched via prime-time television as the Scarlet Knights made their dramatic come-from-behind effort to record the school's biggest win in its rich football history.
